WILDCATS CLOSE
BRILLIANT YEAR
WITH BULLDOGS

MORALE SPLENDID

Teams Win Most Games
This Season Since 1921

One of the ranking teams in the southern conference and the undisputed champions of Kentucky are the Wildcat cagers. The season was brilliant, hard fought, and is worthy of the applause and commendation of enthusiasts. The Kentucky team never quit fighting. The morale of the Blue and White was splendid.

In the preliminary season Kentucky hotly contested Cincinnati twice, winning once and losing once. By the narrow margin of two points Kentucky met defeat at the hands of Indiana. Michigan, a victor over Kentucky in the preliminary season, finished fifth in the Big Ten race and Illinois, who handed Kentucky a defeat, finished second. Wabash College swamped the Kentuckians when they were not really in shape for a good showing. Wabash stands high among the highest, however, having defeated Butler, national champions, at Kansas Conference, and Franklin, who were undefeated for three years and who held the State Indiana championship.

During the regular southern season the 'cats won 13 out of 15 games. This is the most games won since 1921, when they also won 13. The total number of points scored by Kentucky during the southern season was 424, as compared with 329 scored by opponents.

In the southern tournament, the team was trained to the point of excellence, was working like a machine and showed their fastest possibilities.

CLUB MEMBERS
TO MEET MONDAY144 Former Members of Junior Club Now in University

Invitations have been issued to the 144 university men and women who are former members of the Junior Boys' and Girls' Clubs of the state, for a meeting and social entertainment at 7:30 o'clock on Monday, March 9, in room 205 of the Agricultural building.

The Junior Boys' and Girls' Club work of the state is conducted by the extension division of the college of Agriculture. There were 20,000 boys and girls in Kentucky enrolled in the club in 1924. Of this number 144 have entered the University of Kentucky. The purpose of the meeting is to permit all the students in the university who have been Junior Club members to meet. J. W. Whitehouse, state leader of the Junior Club work, is in charge of the program, and others who will assist are: Mr. C. A. Mahan, state leader of County Agents, Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of Home Demonstration Agents, Dean Cooper, Professor Roberts and Miss Hopkins.

There will be no set program and no long speeches. The idea is to get acquainted, to have a word of greeting from those in charge of the agricultural and home economics work in the state and to get any suggestions the students may have for the good of the 20,000 club members who will be engaged in club work this year.

Light refreshments will be served by the girls of the Home Economics department and it is hoped that the entire number of 144 students will be present.

MASTERS CANCELS
HIS ENGAGEMENT

James Stephen, Irish Poet, to Speak Here

It was announced in last week's issue of the Kernel that Edgar Lee Masters was soon to come to the university under the auspices of the English Club. It is regretted that since then Mr. Masters' engagement has been cancelled, due to some changes in his plans which would necessitate greater expense on our part than had formerly been contracted.

On April 7, James Stephens, noted Irish poet and author of "The Crock of Gold," and other poems, is scheduled to appear here. His visit is looked forward to with much interest.

THETA SIGMA PHI
SUPPORTS OFFICE OF EMPLOYMENT

Will Put Women Journalists in Touch With Employers

$1.00 REGISTRATION

Principal Office in Chicago; N. Y. Branch Planned

Women students who aspire to a journalistic career, or to any allied writing position after graduation, will be interested to learn of an organization founded for the purpose of fitting the writing woman to a writing job. Such an organization is the Woman's National Journalistic Register founded in 1920 by Theta Sigma Phi, woman's national journalistic fraternity, as an outgrowth of long-felt need on the part of women journalists for some such device to put them in touch with employers in all parts of the country.

The main office of the Register is located at 18 East Chestnut street, Chicago, under the management of Susan Shaffer Dibelka. A New York branch of the Register is being formed at this time.

Women who desire to apply for a position through the Register will fill out an application blank and pay one dollar registration fee. This entitles them to the services of the Register until they are located in a satisfactory position. After the registrant is placed, a small percentage of her salary is paid to the organization. It is not a money-making scheme, and such charges as are made are only to enable the Register to continue its placement work.

The Woman's National Journalistic Register recognizes five fields of journalistic work and includes many branches under each field. The first of these is newspapers. Among the positions open to women on newspapers are: editors, including special editors, society editors, news and city editors, department editors, telegraph editors, and Sunday editors; reporters, copy-readers and Woman's page.

The subjects of home economics, art fashions, health, moving pictures, children's interests and theatres are handled by women as well as men.

Magazines, the second field, include farm journals, religious papers, trade journals, magazines devoted to special interests, as Popular Mechanics and the Rotarian, and general magazines.

The positions open here are those of editorial assistant, department editor, woman's page, book reviews, copy reading, proof reading, re-write work, special articles, etc.

The third field, publicity work, opens up chances for organizers, promotion work, campaign management and press agents. The fourth field, advertising, needs copy-writers, those able to form sales letters and write catalogues, classified advertisers, and advertisers for department stores.

Free lance work, the fifth field, is important in itself. This type of work is especially adapted to trade journals and special journals. It requires writing ability and an active curiosity which finds the interesting things in events, and a knowledge of the kind of material various magazines will accept.

FRATS DRAW FOR DISTRICT TEAMSAnnual High School
Tourney to be March
13, 14, 15

The annual high school tournament will be played in the new gymnasium here March 13, 14, and 15. The winners of the various district tournaments all over Kentucky will represent their respective districts in the state meet at that time.

A meeting was held Monday afternoon at 3:30 in the office of the Y. M. C. A. and the following districts were chosen by representatives from each fraternity and sorority on the campus:

Boys: Henry Brown Junius Millard Paul Green Al Weiman Sophie Bland Nell Pulliam May Dexter Mary Lair Mrs. Dodge Lucille Stillwell Mrs. Hawley Margaret Yungblut Patrick O'Malley Ray Hopper

Three minor characters have not yet been chosen, but they will be selected before rehearsals which will begin the first of next week.

Mr. Junius Millard, as Henry Brown, co-starring with Al Weiman, will be remembered for the exceptional ability he displayed Amateur Night, when he took the lead in "A House of Cards." This play was awarded the prize, given by the Stroller organization to the best of the three plays presented.

Mr. Al Weiman, as Paul Green, an ambitious young author, has experience combined with his natural ability to act, having taken part in the Stroller production "Seventeen," given in the spring of 1924.

Miss Nell Pulliam, as Sophie Bland, the leading feminine role, is a new star on the Stroller dramatic horizon, but a star that will shine brightly, and will be long remembered by those who are fortunate enough to see "Fifty-Fifty."

Miss Mary Lair, of Cynthiana, will take the part of May Dexter. Miss Lair made the eligibility list this fall, when she took a part in "Overtones," one of the plays given on Amateur Night.

Miss Lucille Stillwell, as Mrs. Dodge, is carrying the character role. Miss Stillwell's natural talent, combined with her former experience in such parts in Stroller casts, gives her a finish equaled by few amateurs.

Miss Margaret Yungblut, as Mrs. Hawley, has all the dignity and poise, together with histrionic ability, to capably take this part. She took a similar part in "Seventeen" last year.

Mr. Ray Hopper, as Patrick O'Malley, the Irish janitor, furnishes the laughs for the entire performance.

This is a very capable cast, and one that will make this production one of the premier presentations of the Stroller organization.

Miss Lydia K. Fremd was elected class prophet to succeed Miss Betty Barbour, who was graduated in January.

Plans were not completed as to the Class Memorial.

"The Matrix," a quarterly magazine, is edited by Theta Sigma Phi and the contributors are members of the active and alumnae chapters and the regular magazine staff. The subscribers are women students in journalism, women in the profession and many newsmen and non professionals.

ROTC SPONSORS ARE CHOSEN FOR THIS SEMESTER

Maria McElroy is Colonel Sponsor for the Battalion

SERVE 1 SEMESTER

Captains Are Assigned
By Their Commanding Officers

Miss Maria McElroy, a junior in the college of Arts and Sciences, and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma fraternity was chosen Colonel Sponsor for the entire R. O. T. C. regiment at a meeting of the advanced course men Wednesday morning.

The usual method of electing sponsors for the different elements of the regiment was departed from this year in that sponsors were elected only for the remainder of this year. This will enable the cadet officers of next year to select their sponsors to serve during the entire year and will obviate the serving together of officers and sponsors who received their commissions at different times.

In the future, the advanced course, being most actively concerned, will elect all sponsors. So far as is possible, the desires of the individual officers, concerning the choice of sponsors for the respective units under their command, will be respected by their brother officers.

The battalion majors are: First Battalion, Mac Murray Harbison; Second Battalion, Marie Langford; Third Battalion, Norma Carter.

Captain sponsors who are to be assigned to companies with the commanders who selected them, at the discretion of the Military department, are: Marjorie Blackburn, Deedy Price, Dorothy Chapman, Alice Thompson, Evelyn Wright, Mabel C. Graham, Elizabeth Regenstein, Lucille Stillwell, Lucille Bywater, Marie Pfeiffer.

These sponsors are to assume office with the publication of this notice and they will be expected to cooperate actively with the officers of the unit in advancing the interests of the Military department in the University of Kentucky.

OUR TEAM

The basketball season which has just closed, together with some of the other recent seasons, can well be put in the same class with bad seasons in farming. The farmer, after he has made more or less of a failure, says, "Well, maybe I'll have a good season next year and make up for the losses caused by this one." Already basketball enthusiasts are saying, "Next year we'll show them a thing or two!" There is no legitimate reason for having to make such a remark as that. We had the material this year and it was guided by a fine coach; then why not better success in games won and spectators attending local contests?

For this answer we have to turn to Madam Rumor, who frequently cannot be trusted, but in this case she presents her case in such convincing ways that we are prone to give some credit to her whisperings. She says some of the regular members of the team failed to train as they should and therefore could not give their best in all contests. This team was made up in the main with men who won the championship of the high schools of the United States at the Chicago tournament held a few winters ago. All of these men should have improved with more training, but some seem to have not understood the real meaning of the word "training," and as a result of this lack of proper understanding, or whatever you choose to term it, the varsity basketball season which closed last week in Atlanta with a rating which will forever remain unsatisfactory to those who follow the game at the University of Kentucky and who are anxious that the team representing them shall always do its best at all times.

The charge was made against certain members of the football team last season that they did not give their best at all times. What many of us are wondering is: "How much longer will this assertion be truthfully made?" We believe that the time is at hand when if a man fails to train as he should, even though he is better than the other fellows are who observe all training rules, he should be required to either take the bench until it is known that he will comply with all requirements of the game, or turn in his suit and go the way of useless athletes.

It is not our purpose to criticize any man unjustly. On the other hand we wish to congratulate all men engaged in football and basketball who have done their best during the past season and say to them that they should look back upon their individual records with pride and a satisfaction of knowing that they have done their task well and have the esteem of not only their teammates, but of the entire public.

We realize that it is too late to make any change in the record, we must accept conditions as they are and we will have to look to the next season for what we desire in the way of a team, every member of which enters into the contest with a resolution to do his best at all times and makes good that determination.

A SAMPLE OF WHAT SHOULD BE AVOIDED IN RHYMES

A poet is a funny man,
He lives up in a tree,
He never sees a bug or worm
But always "Tis a bee."

The winters are a bore to him,
Much colder than to us,
But, when the "Buds of Spring" appear,
Then you should hear him fuss.

A "Balmy Breeze," "A sprig of grass,"
Are bread and meat to him;
He often finds "A leafy bower"
But never sees a limb.

In summer—it's "a shady nook"
That clutches at his soul,
He finds a sermon in each rose,
But knows no "Swimmin' hole."

In autumn—when all real folks
Are filling up with fruit,
Our poet sees a falling leaf
And then he "Draws his flute."

And thus it goes throughout the year,
In famine, frost or fire.
Our poet finds a thousand themes
And strikes his bloomin' lyre.

—Anonymous.

KEY EXPLANATION—NO APOLOGY

Line:

1—Funny—really peculiar, but that word fails to get in the swing.

2—Up in a tree—off the earth, up in the air, interstellar space.

3—Bug, worm—too vulgar for the aesthetic soul of poets.

4—Ants, bugs, wasps and other insects are "bees" to the poet.

5—Winters—no time for lounging by old worm fences or dilapidated buildings—muse perhaps hibernating.

6—Poets, having the soul outside the body, sensitive to blasts of winter.

7—Needs no explanation, just simply the poet's favorite period.

8—Fuss—talk dreamy, make many rhymes, discards prose altogether.

9—Breezes and fresh grass—Start him off, he forces one onto the editor perhaps for a square meal or, even a week's board.

10—Same as 9.

11—Leafy bower—just fits his mouth as he rolls it as "a sweet morsel".

12—Limb—entirely too prosaic for the rhymer.

13—Shady nook—never "under the shade of a tree."

14—Clutches—draws him on for more expressions of soft stuff.

15—Sermons—preachments, advising others to be good and adore the beautiful.

16—The poet rarely gives any notice to the pores of his skin and is often on speaking terms with dirt; swimming holes for "he"men, not for poeple-dumplings.

17—Real folks, just the ordinary garden variety of people who eat big red apples, drink cider and crave apple-dumplings.

18—Self explanatory.

19—Falling leaf—sufficient excuse for another perpetration of cruelty.

20—Draws his flute—strikes up another tune.

21—At all times and upon all occasions.

22—Famine, frost, etc.—just the same to the poet, it's a song.

23—As above.

24—In the language of the crossword puzzle—same as 20.

CLASS PERSONALS

HOW YOU CAN HELP

Frequently members of the Association living in other states have wanted to know how they could help in electing men to the legislature, favorable to the university.

I do not believe the university will receive proper support from the state until the citizens realize that money so invested will be returned many times in the development of our resources. More than 90 percent of the money invested in coal development in Kentucky is outside capital. Many hundred acres of the finest coal land in the world are sold for one dollar an acre.

Some candidates have announced for the legislature and others have been campaigning for a year. They have and will announce on all sorts of platforms. If every man living outside of the state would write an article for the home paper telling why it pays to invest in education, showing the good the university is doing in the state, it will have a very helpful influence. The articles will put people to thinking. They will be glad to read short articles written by home boys who have made good, and are now living in other states. Did you ever stop to think that in many cases the lack of proper development of Kentucky's natural resources is the reason graduates of the university are working outside the state? Alumni in Kentucky can help even more easily.

It is suggested that you lay this proposition before your club at once and start the ball rolling.

Country papers, more than our dailies, mold public sentiment. Beginning now a drive through the country papers will get the people to thinking along favorable lines. It can do no harm. We think it will do good.

WOMEN STUDENTS SUCCESSFUL AS STATE SCRIBES

Theta Sigma Phi Girls Are in Worthy Positions

FIELD IS LIMITED

Women Work Both as Editors and as Reporters

Unfortunately, opportunity in the south does not often knock at the door of the woman student in journalism for the purpose of offering her employment on a daily paper or in some reportorial or editorial capacity. While many brilliant girls whose work on the campus, on the weekly bulletin, the Kernel and the Kentuckian has made places for them in the honorary journalistic organization, they have of necessity taken up work oftentimes hardly connected in any way with the profession of their choice.

Miss Eliza Piggott, Kentucky's first girl graduate with the degree of a journalist, has been since her graduation state editor of the Lexington Herald. Her work has introduced her widely to the professional writer and her standing as a journalist is unusually high.

Miss Frances Marsh, who took up journalism as a minor, has since her graduation been society writer on the Wilmington Morning News, of Wilmington, Del. As a student Miss Marsh did exceptional work in short story writing and in dramatizing one-act plays and for a vacation experience during the summer of 1922 did feature writing in New York City.

Miss Irene McNamara, who was graduated in 1923, is now an instructor in the department of Journalism, in general reporter and society writer on the Lexington Herald. Before affiliating with the university, Miss McNamara was proof reader and reporter on the Herald and has thus equipped herself from the practical side of the profession to take up the theoretical.

Miss Mary F. Gorey, who was graduated last June, announced her intention of "going on the Cincinnati Enquirer," and true to her promise, went into the editorial office of the biggest paper in Ohio and with no previous training than that afforded on the campus of the university, calmly asked for a job. The determination of the applicant and the fact that she was not afraid to try, produced the position for the young lady, so the story goes. Her quality must have kept her there, for she is still writing society, theatricals and special stories for the Enquirer.

Miss Margaret McClure has taken up the interesting work of free lance since she resigned from the Lexington Herald as general reporter. Her correspondence is not confined to the state and often includes stories of magazine rating.

Although many of Theta Sig's members have not taken up the journalistic profession, but are teaching in public and private schools, a feature of their studies is the directing and editing of the school papers. Notable among these are Miss Anna Louise Connor, Danville High School, Kitty Conroy and Margaret Lavin, Jefferson County Home School, Louise Connell, Mt. Eden High School, Virginia Throckmorton, Lexington High School. Miss Martha Buckman uses her training for publicity methods as director of dramatics in a community theater in Seattle, Wash., and Miss Mary Catherine Gormley has a similar opportunity as Home Demonstration Agent in Ashland.

'TAINT NOBODY'S BUSINESS IF WE DO!

This is the Theta Sigma Phi edition of the Kernel. Probably you won't like it, but it will not interfere in the least with our plan of existence if you don't. As you know, we are an absolutely independent organization, the brains of the campus journalistic world, functioning this week as newspaper women, for the sole purpose of placing our individual and collective abilities before our associates, in order to prove the assertion that it is really the women who are the power behind the guns.

We are very grateful to the members of the Kernel staff for the privilege of editing the Kernel; however, we are confident that there are certain narrow minded bigots on the campus who will not appreciate our brilliant efforts. In fact, we are fully prepared for any derogatory remarks that may appear in forthcoming issues of the Kernel; for as we have said before we are sufficient unto ourselves, and if at this time we feel it our conscientious duty to praise or blame any one or all, of our fellow students, "Taint nobody's business if we do!"

LOSERS WHO WON

"They win, who never near the goal,
They run who halt on wounded feet,
Art hath its martyrs like the soul,
Its victors in defeat."

Thus, in a humble way, do we pay tribute to the team, which manfully carried the honor of Kentucky far into the southland, and brought it back unsullied and undefiled, in a glorious and honorable defeat.

Kentucky after all was not altogether the losers in that hard fought battle for honors; and in the real soul-satisfying sense of the term, the moral victory belongs to the Wildcats, for it is easy to win, but it takes the undaunted spirit of a Kentuckian to lose—and smile.

To McFarland, the diminutive captain, with the fighting spirit of a Spartan, to Milward, the lanky center, who smiles and fights to the death; to the untiring stamina of Underwood, the spirit of the undaunted Carey, with his devil-may-care hauteur, Kentucky makes its reverential bow; while for Hughes, Helm and Rohs, the powerful reserve force, that made our team so strong, we have only the praise that is the natural consequence of deeds well done.

And so, according to the relative values of things in this material world of ours, Kentucky lost; but according to our own personal equations, Kentucky won; for after all, it is not whether we won or lost that really counts, but how we played the game.

CREATIVE JOURNALISM

To the man or woman who plans to make his livelihood with the pen, no field offers greater rewards than that of newspaper work. This is especially true if he belongs to that class of normal young journalists who entertain the hopeful expectation that some day their names will be blazoned across Broadway.

If a person has a "hankering after writing," which refuses to be downed in spite of the recurrent snubs of family and friends, the best course for him to follow is to proceed straightway to a newspaper office and secure a position, menial or otherwise. There he will soon find out whether he can depict life truthfully and sincerely, or whether he possesses only the attributes of a hack writer after all.

There is no test so telling as the one which the reporter faces daily; there is no class of readers so critical as the great American public. Any one writing for a periodical prepares his work with a certain class of readers in mind; but the journalist who writes the story of the world's performances must select his materials with the realization that they will be read by Judy O'Grady and the Colonel's Lady, and their respective husbands. Accordingly, the first requisite of a true writer is developed—university.

The author who begins his career as a "cub" has the opportunity to collect a wealth of details undreamed of by those who do not know the inside workings of a great newspaper office. Together the items pour in, with here a whisper of happiness from some sordid quarter of the city, and there a hint of something else from Fifth Avenue. And so it goes day and night. The maelstrom of the press receives many stories that the public will never see—except, perhaps, in the disguised garb of a novel.

In a newspaper office the events from the four quarters of the globe flow in faster than does gossip at an all-day sewing circle. A person cannot long remain provincial if he rubs shoulders daily with revolutions in China, famines in India, and earthquakes in the far-off Pacific.

To the would-be writer the newspaper is a laboratory where he may divide and combine those elements of love, hate, jealousy, honor, faith and the like that comprise the setting and stage whereon we actors play our parts. And if he be graced by the gods, it is there that he may invoke the Spirit in Scarlet, that the world sees, and loves, and loses—and finds again—Romance.

TOWLES ELECTED BY STUDENTS IN SENIOR CONTEST

Managing Editor of the Kernel Chosen Most Outstanding

SCHOLARSHIP HIGH

Prominent in Athletics, Oratory, English and Journalism

J. Sterling Towles, of Lawrenceburg, was elected the outstanding member of the Senior class of the University of Kentucky at an election held by the juniors and seniors recently.

Towles was graduated from the Kavanaugh high school of Lawrenceburg in June of 1921, and entered the University of Kentucky the following fall.

REPORTERS	Nancy Stephenson
Virginia Conroy	Willie King
Emmett Milward	John Bullock
Esther Hayard	Louis Hargott
Amabelle Murphy	Elizabeth Littleton
Wade Braxton	Virginia Boyd
Warren A. Price	Neil Plummer
Elizabeth Glasscock	Ralph Connell
Harriet Chatfield	"Hob" Mitchell
Dorothy Cooper	Lois Hargott
Elizabeth Glasscock

The election recently held was sponsored by the Kentucky Kernel and each member of the junior and senior classes was allowed one vote. The contest was held to determine the qualities that make a student outstanding in the eyes of his associates and fellow classmates. The students' morale, character, scholastic standing, leadership, activities and whether or not he was self-sustaining during his collegiate work were considered points of eligibility in selecting the 14 outstanding seniors. Sterling Towles measures up to the requirements of the contest in every way.

During his three and a half years of college life he has won many honors. He is vitally interested in all phases of college activities and is a loyal supporter of college athletics and sports. Upon entering the university he worked in order to finance his education. Even with outside work he was able to carry heavy schedules and made an exceptionally good standing. His excellent work in men's gymnasium during his sophomore year made him assistant gym instructor. As a sophomore he was also elected president of Patterson Literary society, manager of the sophomore basketball team, a member of the Student Friendship Council and was initiated into Alpha Delta Sigma, men's honorary journalistic fraternity. He won the Crum prize for declamation and the Patterson prize for oratory.

During his junior year Towles was made president of Henry Watterson chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, he edited the "freshman bible," was assistant manager of the varsity football team, manager of the junior basketball team and managing editor of the Kernel, in his senior year. During the past semester he was pledged to the SuKy Circle, the recognized pep organization of the campus, and was commissioned a captain in the R. O. T. C. unit.

Sterling Towles is a good student, he carries heavy schedules, and in addition to school work and work on the Kernel he finds time to teach six hours of Freshman English in the university. He has a fine sense of literary values and his work in the English department has been noteworthy. He has also done outside work in journalism, and at various times for the last two years he has been employed by the Lexington Herald as proof reader and reporter. He is well liked by all the students and his good nature and everlasting smile are contagious.

Mr. Towles was a candidate from Kentucky for the Rhodes scholarship at Oxford last fall. He will receive a Bachelor of Arts degree from the university in June. He has been a student of marked force and possesses many of the essentials of leadership. We shall be no more surprised to find Towles' name listed at the top of the list of names of great men of the world within a few years than we were to find it listed at the top of the senior class. If graduation would sever all his relations with the University of Kentucky, June 1, 1925, would be a sad day indeed, but Sterling's Alma Mater finds solace in the fact that he will become one of her alumni who, having worked so hard for her during his school days, will continue his efficient work in after years. It is the loyalty of such students that is the very essence of "State's" life. In them she puts her trust and from them she expects great things. We are sure she will not be disappointed in Towles.

News Ed. Note.—The picture of Mr. Towles which appears herewith is reproduced over his blushing protest by other members of the Kernel staff, the "boss'es" modesty having compelled him to forbid us to give it publication.

Last Saturday night the "Chi Omeggers" got their purse strings loose and "foot loose" for one of those bi-annual stiff-shirt-fronted formulas. We waited two years for them to show off again and now it's all over. But why is it that they can't do anything without "little green"? They weren't satisfied with having a Green girl, who persisted in wearing green on all occasions, smear green paint all over their furniture at the chapter house, they must decorate the ballroom with greenery and pledge another Green to "carry on." Is the predominance of this color indicative of the uncultured or symbolic of something naive or refreshing?

Another thing we want to know is why the sudden vogue for "neck corsages"? Is that the danger line, now that the waistline isn't any more?

We heard a freshman say every time he ate a mint somebody asked him what he'd had, and the freshman wants to know what the campus is coming to.

We have noticed that the superintendent of grounds has been forced to place thick brush in various places upon the campus. Now, what we want to know is if this really helps the grass to grow or does it prevent the campus squirrels and other varmints from killing it.

You will agree with us that we are right there this week when it comes to getting ourselves across to the public. But how else will you know that we exist and how else could we ever get ourselves in the paper if we didn't take this opportunity? We do not want to be too well known, however, because revenge is sweet.

Speaking of senior week and corduroy trousers, it would be very economical for two girls to buy one pair of trousers and then each would have a skirt. Wouldn't that be unique?

The editor of this column is always "harping" on freshman respect. We would like to suggest how about a little less egotism and a little more respect from some of the members of the upper class groups.

"Politics is Hell," said Sherman or some such celebrity. It doesn't matter who, anyway. In our small way we would just like to pay tribute to that person. He said a mouthful. No one in the world is more keenly aware of that fact than the students of the University of Kentucky, either. Politics is like the poor—we have it with us always. But what's the use to worry? HALL WINS A HEAT

Davis Second to World
Record Holder in 60

Kentucky finished second in the senior state indoor track meet, which was given under the auspices of the Louisville Amateur Athletic Association, last Friday, with a total of 12 points. The team finishing in front of the Wildcats was the University of Louisville with a total of 27 points. This meet, which is held annually at the Jefferson County Armory, is the only indoor track meet held in Kentucky.

The most outstanding performers for Kentucky were Ray Hall, running unattached, Brady, and Davis. Hall finished far ahead of his field in the mile run, and in the same race Brame ran third. Brady scaled the dizzy height of 10 feet 6 inches in winning the pole vault in handy fashion. Brady was also the only Kentucky man to score a point in the National Senior Indoor Track and Field Meet on Saturday night, by placing second in the pole vault. He was given cheer after cheer by the huge mass of spectators after his sterling performance against nationally known vaulters. Gordon Davis finished second in both the 80 yard dash and the 300 yard dash.

Summary of Kentucky men who placed, with the exception of men who were mentioned before:

Uncas Miller, second in 440;
Mile relay—won by Kentucky.
George Woolf, second in pole vault.
H. G. Wilson, first in shot put.

KITTENS SWAMP THE LITTLE TIGERS

Six Freshmen are Varsity Material for Next Year

The University of Kentucky Kittens swamped the Georgetown freshmen by a score of 43-8 at Georgetown last Friday night. The game was a walkaway from start to finish.

The Kittens worked their offense perfectly through the weak Georgetown defense. At the end of the first half the score was 25-1 and the opponents had not shot a field goal. Kentucky got 15 points before Georgetown had scored.

Mohney was high point man with 13 points to his credit and Hicker-son was next with 9 points. Ropke and Jenkins scored 6 points each, Ellis made 5 and Phipps scored 4.

This game completes the regular schedule of the Kentucky freshmen, who are champions of the state, without a blot of defeat on their record for the season.

Coach Eklund's quintet established good team work with no individual luminaries to corrupt their perfect form. The spirit of the team was good throughout the season.

Jenkins, Ropke, Hickerson, Mohney, Ellis and Phipps are varsity material for next year. Champ, Steele, Sharp, Berry, Burnette, Taylor, Elliott, and Martin contributed to the success of the freshman team and helped to make it one of Kentucky's best.

VARSITY TENNIS CHAMPS RESPOND

Number of Courts on Campus Will be In- creased

Five letter men of last year answered the call for tennis aspirants issued by Coach Downing last week at a meeting in the gym Monday afternoon. These men were Jasper McClure, captain of the 1925 team, George Ragland, student manager, Karl Lewis, Alvyn Greenbaum, and Jimmie McFarland.

New recruits for varsity are J. C. Bobbitt, G. T. Fenn, P. J. Schlinger, A. E. Lewis and James Reed. Last year's team excelled any in Kentucky, and Charles Spillman, who was graduated last year, is the only loss sustained by the team.

Plans are being made for six additional courts on the campus and the old courts are to be put into the best possible condition for varsity practice. The schedule will probably include Tennessee, Georgetown, Berea, Centre, Louisville and Cincinnati.

The organization of a team and a schedule is contemplated by enterprising freshmen led by Buddy Steele, Richard Lewis, Cohen, Ebbert and Wilson.

LEAGUE OPENING POSTPONED

The girls' volleyball class league has been postponed until the week of March 9. On March 9 at 7:30 in the girls' gym, the freshmen will meet the sophomores and the juniors will play the seniors. March 10 at the same hour the freshmen and juniors will clash and the sophomores meet the seniors. March 12 the final pairing will match the freshmen and seniors and sophomores and juniors.

TOWN TEAM WINS GIRLS' TOURNEY

Town Girls Have Edge On Other Teams in Contests

The Town Girls' team won the intramural championship after a hard fight with the Boyd Hall quintet in the semi-finals February 24 and a hotly contested encounter with Sigma Beta Upsilon team in the finals February 26. Trophies will be awarded the winning team by the Woman's Athletic Association.

The town team was picked as a possible winner early in the season, and held the front rank by practice and enthusiasm. Hill and Alexander were outstanding on a good team which knew the art of basketball. Hill was high point girl, an easy and effective floor walker and a veritable captain of her team. Alexander was a hard fighter, an accurate eager and a dependable player.

Boughton, guard on the winning team, played a close defensive game but was weak offensively. Robinson was the main defense and made a sterling guard. Much of the credit for the victory is due her. Osborne was dependable but not outstanding. Thomas was general relief and played her part well throughout.

The Sigma Beta team held the McFarland has deftly piloted the cats through a successful basketball season, and has been an able and a valuable man in the spectacular goal shooting that is a high light in the 'cat' offensive.

"Jimmie Mac," as he is affectionately known by his campus associates, is one of the most outstanding men in the university in scholarship and in all branches of campus activities, having been chosen a member of the Keys, honorary sophomore fraternity, and of Thirteen the honorary fraternity for Junior men, their membership in these organizations being regulated by accomplishments in some phase of activity.

He was recently pledged to "Scabbard and Blade," national honorary military society, whose roster is taken from members of the Junior class who are taking the advanced course in Military Science, and who have shown exceptional ability in Military tactics and field work.

Jimmie has another year of basketball and Kentucky backers feel confident that it will be another successful season for the team with the assurance of the return of this valuable veteran.

Kentucky Wins First, But Loses Second in Race For Southern Conference Title

ALPHA SIGMA PHI LEADS TOURNEY

Sophs Win 4 Out of 5;
Are First in Class League

At the end of last week the teams of the three basketball leagues were putting up a stiff fight for first place honors in their respective groups. More interest is being manifested in intramural basketball by the student body than in previous years. This is partly due to the fact that a larger number of participants and better facilities for staging the games than there were in previous years.

The greatest battle of all is being fought in the class league where the Sophs are on top and the Seniors in the second hole. The Sophs wave won 4 games and lost one in their drive for first place while the lowly frosh have yet to win their first game.

In the Pan-Hellenic league the Alpha Sigmas have everything to themselves with 5 games on the win column and none on the lost column. The Delta Taus and S. A. Es are tied for second place with four won and one lost. The K. As seem to be slow in getting started, having already dropped five contests.

There is also a battle royal being staged in the non Pan-Hellenic league with three teams tied for first place. Triangle, Alpha Gamma Rho, and Alpha Gamma Epsilon are the fortunate aggregations with a percentage of .750. Sigma Beta Xi, like K. A. and the freshmen, have failed to win a game.

The Pan-Hellenic and non Pan-Hellenic leagues played 12 games this week while the Class league played 3 games.

Theta Sigma Phi, woman's honorary journalistic fraternity, held its formal initiation Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Frances Lee, 350 Aylesford Place, who is president of the organization. Refreshments of sandwiches were served after the ceremony.

Ten women, four from the Senior class and six from the Junior class, were initiated. The new members are: Dorothy Cooper, Frances Green, Esther Hagyard, Judith Yungblut, seniors; Harriet Chatfield, Elizabeth Glasscock, Lois Hargett, Edith Minehan, Eugenia O'Hara, Edna Lewis Wells, juniors.

Miss Willie King, a member of the Sophomore class, was pledged at the tea given by Theta Sigma Phi at Patterson Hall, February 11, but a recent change in the ruling prevents her being initiated until the end of this semester.

Members of the active chapter present were: Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, Miss Irene McNamara, Frances Lee, Frances Kane, Mary Stallings, Amanda Gordon, Helen King, Nancy Stephenson, Mavis Sternberg, Rachelle Shacklette, Louise Burks, Mary Frances Campbell and Margaret Chenault.

FUNKHOUSER SPEAKS AT MEN'S DORMITORY

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, professor of zoology, who was prominent in the attempted rescue work of Floyd Collins, spoke last night before a joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. at the men's dormitory at 7 o'clock, on "Lessons from Sand Cave."

Dr. Funkhouser has spoken to numerous societies and gatherings since his return from the scene of the disaster a few weeks ago, and all his lectures have proved exceedingly interesting, since he experienced many hardships, strain and sleepless nights during the ordeal, and in the end collapsing under the strain.

STETSON

WOST young men today know the importance of looking fit. Good appearance counts much in the game of life. The young man who dresses with taste has a decided advantage.

But—it is surprising how little thought the average man gives to his hat. It is his crown, yet he seems to stop dressing at the neck.

Be careful in your selection of your headwear. When you buy a hat, select a Stetson. Its style is right; its quality means long wear.

M. with these words: "Kentucky won impressively. The Blues could shoot field baskets, foul goals, and pass. They never stalled for an instant even with a 7 point lead and two minutes to play. Those tactics may not have been good basketball, but the crowd was pleased."

"Now many are picking Kentucky for a semi-finalist probably because they like the young men."

Kentucky upset the doope when she defeated Mississippi A. & M., who were popularly supposed to let Kentucky down lightly. Kentucky was a better team than Georgia, but lost to the Crimson on technical fouls. Tulane, whose team Kentucky defeated decisively at Lexington, were second to North Carolina in the finals. Kentucky, although a loser in the tournament, proved her superiority in the South.

McFarland, captain of the team, was off and on during the season on account of various disabilities. He played the stellar game that only McFarland can play in several of the contests.

Alberts played a brilliant defense practically all year and a good offense at Georgia. He played Ilenian of Tulane to a standstill in the pre-tournament game with the Greenies.

Milward was slow in starting but played well in the latter part of the season. He was the leading scorer in the last six games.

Underwood played a good offensive game but was weak defensively. He displayed artistic passing ability in Lexington games.

Carey, the backbone of the Kentucky defense, played a steady and at times flashy game as backguard.

Helm was the general utility man and played well practically every position on the team.

Hughes came out late, and although handicapped, helped the team considerably.

Tracy, White, Rohs, King and Bearden all participated in contests and were helpful factors during the regular season.

The squad will lose Rohs, White and Hughes when they will be graduated this spring.

Will Observe Mothers' Day on the Campus

Miss Sarah Blanding, dean of women, has called a meeting of all the mothers of girls living in town, for Tuesday, March 10. The meeting will be held at 3:30 and will be in the Little Theatre. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss the problems which confront the town girl while at the university, and also to discuss plans for the observance of a mothers' day on the campus in the spring. The observance of mothers' day at the university would make it possible for mothers of girls from all over the state to meet and thereby feel a closer interest in the welfare of the school.
